

Fashion design

*Moschino
Evening dress
1988*

Machine-sewn cotton and polyester

This evening dress was designed by Moschino in 1988. It is constructed of a black petticoat bodice and 20 bras to form a bell-shaped skirt. It is reminiscent of work by designers Vivienne Westwood and Jean-Paul Gaultier, both of whom audaciously employed brassieres and corsets as outerwear.

Evening dress constructed of a black petticoat top and twenty black bras to form the skirt.